LITERARY INTELLIGENCE, &c.

We understand that Mr. Pitcairn is preparing for publication, a limited impression of an Historical and Genealogical Account of the principal families of the name of Kennedy, from a MS. in the Advocates' Library, written before 1610, with Notes and Illustrations. Mr. Pitcairn's object in printing these Memoirs, is to illustrate the Auchinrane trial, which will be given in Part VI. of his collection of Criminal Records. The narratives contained in this trial, afford the fullest account of the deadly feuds which gave rise to a series of bloodshed and violence, of which Sir Walter Scott has afforded but a faint outline in his preface to the Drama of Auchinrane. There are few things more extraordinary in the Scottish annals than this family history, disclosing as it does, a state of society in Carrick, of which few persons had any previous knowledge or idea. Literally every man's hand was "against his brother." The houses of Cassilis, Barmy, and Colzean, having separate interests, and each struggling for the mastery, were involved in perpetual broils. The story of Auchinrane, interesting and unique as it certainly is, was a mere interlude to the general Meleé. The Life of Alex. Alexander, written by himself, and edited by John Howell, author of "Journal of a Soldier," "Life of John Nichol," &c. is in the press. This singular piece of autobiography exhibits most minutely and faithfully, the real Adventures of Alexander Alexander, the disowned son of a gentleman in the west of Scotland. It commences with infancy, traverses three quarters of the globe, and comprehends a period of nearly fifty years of the life of a man who has been placed in many trying situations, as a soldier, an overseer in the West Indies, and an officer in the patriot armies of South America.—The Greek Grammar of Dr. Frederick Thiersch, translated from the German, with brief remarks, by Professor Landford, is in the press.—Attempts in Verse, by John Jones, an old servant: with some account of the writer; and an introductory Essay on the Lives and Works of uneducated Poets, by Robert Southey, L.L.D. is preparing for publication.—The Progress of Society, a work by the late Dr. Robert Hamilton, Professor of Mathematics in the Marischal College and University of Aberdeen, is about to appear. Dr. Hamilton was engaged for many years in writing this work, and continued to revise and improve it until within a few days of his death.—An edition of the Standard Novels, uniform with the Waverley novels, is announced. Also the Library of Modern Travels, Voyages, and Discoveries; and, though last, not likely to be the least useful, a Juvenile Library, addressed to the youth of both sexes.—Mr. Madde, the traveller in Turkey, is preparing an Eastern Tale, in the manner of Anastasius.—Messrs. Black, Young and Young, the publishers of Dr. Webster's Dictionary of the English Language, announce their intention to publish the Introduction to the work in a separate form.

WORKS JUST PUBLISHED.

In 1 vol. with Map and Plan,

THE MARQUESS OF LONDON-DERRY'S NARRATIVE of the late WAR in GERMANY and FRANCE.

"This highly important work is the only connected and well-authenticated account we have of the spirit-stirring scenes which preceded the fall of Napoleon.—It introduces us into the cabinets and presence of the Allied Monarchs. We observe the secret policy of each individual—we see the course pursued by the wily Bernadotte, the temporizing Metternich, and the ambitious Alexander. The Battle of Bautzen—the assault of Dresden—the defeat of Vandamme at Kulm—the fall of Dantzic—the re-establishment of the Electoral dominions—the battle of Leipsic—the unhappy fate of Prince Poniatowski—the hot pursuit and narrow escape of Napoleon—the character of Caulaincourt—the battle of Laon—the barbarities of the Cossacks—Entry of the Allies into Paris—the desertion of Napoleon by his general—his last struggle and departure for Elba, are a few of the interesting contents of this work, which deserves a place in every historical library."—Globe.
